

Experimentation with cannabis for medical use

CALL FOR TENDERS SPRAYERS

On 26 March, Health Minister Olivier Véran was in Clermont-Ferrand to announce the launch of the experimentation of therapeutic cannabis. Medical cannabis will be made available to patients for two years in two forms: oils administered orally and flowering tops (dried flowers) to be vaporised for inhalation.

Following the announcement of the selected suppliers/operators for the medical cannabis trial, the French National Agency for the Safety of Medicines (ANSM) launched a new call for tender for the supply and distribution of a cannabis-based vaporisation device.

DelleD has submitted its application and is one of the few French companies to have done so. The company will be responsible for the delivery of the vaporisation device to pharmacies for internal use in health establishments and to dispensing pharmacies participating in the experiment, if it is selected.

Franck Milone, President of DELLED adds: "We offer French patients who find themselves in therapeutic impasse the only controlled medical device with secure cannabis cartridges. As a French laboratory, we are participating in the creation of an intelligent medical cannabis programme in France."
